

Health History Policy

State regulations require a developmental health history as a part of a completed case study evaluation to determine eligibility for special education services. The school nurse obtains this information by interview, questionnaire, or phone contact of the parents and/or review of records. The school is required to update this information at each eligibility review or sooner if needed to determine eligibility. When warranted, the school nurse will request authorization from parent(s)/guardian(s) to exchange information with the student's physicians.
